IMMIGRATION BILL VETOED BY THE PRESIDENT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Declaring that he vetoed the immigration bill with the greatest regret, President Wilson today returned the measure to the House of Representatives without his signature.

He sent to Congress a message outlining his views on the bill and giving his specific reasons for opposing his judgment to that of a majority of both the Houses of Congress, a step which he declares "No man who realizes his own liability to error can take without great hesitation."

The President's message follows:

"It is with unaffected regret that I find myself constrained by clear conviction to return this bill without my signature. Not only do I feel it to be a very serious matter to exercise the power of veto in any case, because it involves opposing the single judgment of the President to the judgment of the majority of both the Houses of the Congress, a step which no man who realizes his own liability to error can take without great hesitation, but also because this particular bill is in so many important respects admirable, well-conceived and desirable.

"Its enactment into law would undoubtedly enhance the efficiency and improve the methods of handling the important branch of the public service to which it relates, but candor and a sense of duty with regard to the responsibility so clearly imposed upon me by the constitution in mat-

More Stockyards Ordered Closed

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—The stockyards at Buffalo, N. Y., Pittsburgh, Pa., and Richmond, Va., today were closed by order of the United States government to permit them to be disinfected. This action was taken because of a number of shipments of cattle to these yards which it is feared, were infected with foot and mouth disease. The yards will reopen after the disinfecting process is completed, provided there is no outbreak.

MANSFIELD PUT UP NO 'HUSH FUND,' HE SAYS

That Miss Elizabeth M. Ryan was responsible for the Watch and Ward raid on Ferncroft inn in 1913 was charged today by Harry W. Mansfield, whom Miss Ryan is suing for $50,000 for alleged breach of promise.

Mansfield was being cross-examined by Mr. Coakley for Miss Ryan and he asked Mansfield:

"When Attorney Sullivan asked you if you understood that Miss Ryan had seen an attorney and you asked Sullivan if Frank Chase of the Watch and Ward Society was an attorney, did you intend the jury to understand that Miss Ryan had seen Frank Chase of the Watch and Ward?"

He began to answer: "Yes, he told me"—— but was interrupted.

Q.—I don't care what he told you? Have you any knowledge that she ever saw Chase? A.—No.

Q.—Do you want the jury to understand that Miss Ryan was in any way responsible for the raid on Ferncroft by the Watch and Ward Society in 1913? A.—I do.

LETTERS END "WITH LOVE."

It was expected that more letters from Mansfield to Miss Ryan would be read today following those read yesterday. In these Mansfield signed himself "with love, Harry."

Mansfield said today on re-direct examination that he attended the Harvard Medical School from the Fall of 1889, to the Spring of 1891

LABOR PRAISE FOR JOHN D., JR.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—"Both capital and labor have been benefited by the examination of John D. Rockefeller, Jr.," declared Austin D. Garretson of Iowa, a member of the Federal Commission on Industrial Relations, when that body resumed its inquiry today into certain philanthropic aggregations of capital and also the relations existing between capital and labor.

"Mr. Rockefeller impressed me as being an excellent witness," continued Mr. Garretson. "I was favorably impressed with him. I am sure of this—while Mr. Rockefeller was upon the stand for three days he learned more about close conditions and more about the workingmen and about the labor situation in Colorado than he would have learned in a lifetime hedged in by men of his own class.

"Mr. Rockefeller impressed me as a personality of his own and he now deserves to be known as a power by himself apart from the wealth and influence of his father.

"He should not be known as merely the son of John D. Rockefeller?"

Mr. Garretson is president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Conductors.

Chairman Frank P. Walsh of Missouri, chairman of the commission, said that after the hearings were completed in this city the commissioners would go to Chicago, where it will begin an inquiry into transportation and the condition of railway employes.

Ivy Lee of the "personal staff" of John D. Rockefeller, Sr., was the first witness. There was only a small crowd present, as the absence of the younger ofickefeller detracted from the general interest.

(An article setting forth John D. Rockefeller, Jr.'s, attitude toward labor appears on Page 11.)

French Destroyer Sunk Off Nieuport

BERLIN, Jan. 28.—(By wireless)—A French torpedo boat destroyer is reported to have been sunk off Nieuport last week.

BOSTON POLICE CALLED BRUTAL

John J. Noreau of Somerville testified before the board of inquiry at Charlestown navy yard today that the police arrest in Boston of two firemen from the battleship Georgia on December 7 was "a brutal and needless assault" and that the sailors were clubbed, without making resistance; that one of them was felled by a blow from a police club and that he had seen other and even more brutal assaults committed by the Boston police.

Mr. Noreau lives at No. 11 Dell street, Somerville. He is a district storekeeper for the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company. He has no naval connection. He is a cousin of Father Augustine Malley, now of Framingham, who was chaplain at the Massachusetts State Prison four years ago. Mr. Noreau, when asked if any of his relatives are in the navy, told the board of inquiry that his cousin, Father Malley, had also been chaplain at the navy yard.

Father Malley, according to statement from the navy yard, was not officially chaplain there. It is inferred, from Mr. Noreau's statement, that Father Malley may have acted in a spiritual capacity for some of the men at the yard, especially as the chaplainship at the State prison nearby made him easy to reach.

NOREAU ONLY WITNESS.

Mr. Noreau was the only witness today and the final one at the inquiry. The hearing closed before noon. Tomorrow afternoon the board will receive the stenographer's official script of testimony and will frame an official report, to be forwarded to Washington.

The inquiry is technically an investigation into the arrest of Paul C. Kruper and T. A. Johnson, first-class firemen on the U. S. S. Georgia, who were locked up on charges of intoxication. The police accused the sailors of creating a disturbance in Court street.

The inquiry is also being held to ascertain if enlisted navy men, when ashore in Boston, are subject to unfair or brutal treatment by the Boston police.

Noreau preceded his testimony with this statement to the board of inquiry:

"I am here as a witness, not alone for the sailors' defence, but also for general humanity."

In testifying Noreau said:

"I witnessed the assault, both in Scollay square and at the corner of Hanover and Portland streets. These assaults came from clubs in the hands of the officers. The sailors did not offer any resistance, for I watched every move. No one could help being in sympathy with the sailors after witnessing such conduct on the part of the police."

3 WEARS CLUBBED SAILORS DID NOT RESIST THE POLICE

I am here as a witness, not alone for the sailors' defence, but also for general humanity.

I witnesses the assault, both in Scollay square and at the corner of Hanover and Portland streets. These assaults came from clubs in the hands of the officers. The sailors did not offer any resistance, for I watched every move. No one could help being in sympathy with the sailors after witnessing such conduct on the part of the police.

"At the patrol box threats were made by the officers to the sailors. At the corner of Portland and Hanover street I saw one of the sailors struck by a club and I saw him fall to the ground bleeding."

'CUT DUE TO BLOW'

Q.—Was this cut on the sailor's head received as result of a blow from the club, or from falling on the sidewalk? A.—That cut was received from the blow of a club, nothing else.

In answer to other questions Noreau said he never was in the navy himself, but his brother had been state prison and navy yard chaplain. Noreau said he never was in court for trial or as a witness.

"I never wanted to come over here," he added, "but this was a little more than I could stand."

Q.—Did you ever see other so-called brutal assaults by the Boston police. A.—I have seen many.

Q.—Any assaults as brutal as this one? A.—Yes, and worse.

Q.—Without cause? A.—Yes, I have seen a man clubbed for merely hesitating.

MAY WHEAT AT $1.50 IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—"Dollar and a half wheat" was realized on the Board of Trade today when May wheat opened at 1.50 to 1.49⅞. The opening was attended by scenes of considerable excitement, dealers evidently thinking the cold wave would have an effect on prices.

The $1.50 price set at the start of trading was an advance of 19c over yesterday's close. July wheat made an identical gain, opening at $1.42 compared with a close of $1.42⅜, Wednesday. All other grains and provision were higher at the opening and held their gains in the early trading. Corn was up 3c, and oats 3c to 3c. Provisions averaged 7 cents higher.

Quincy Mayor to Remove Assessor

Mayor Chester I. Campbell of Quincy began a "shake up" in the several departments today by calling for the resignation of Eric H. Bergfors, a member of the Board of Assessors, whose term of office does not expire till 1916. Bergfors refused to resign and will be removed by the Mayor. Chairman W. L. Buckley of the Board of Assessors has sent in his resignation, which has been accepted. At the special meeting of the City Council tomorrow evening the Mayor will send in his list of new appointments.

Brakeman's Body Found on Tracks

NEWBURYPORT, Jan. 28.—The dead body of William H. Blood, thirty, a brakeman on the shifter of the Boston & Maine Railroad, was found today at the switch near the "No Nothing" station, about a mile from this city. His brother, councilman Andrew Blood, who is also a brakeman on the same train, missed him and in going back to look for him, found his body.

ROUMANIA MAY CAST LOT TODAY

BUCHAREST, Jan. 28.—The Roumanian Parliament reassembled today for what was expected to be one of the critical sessions in the nation's history.

As the members gathered a report was in general circulation that the Premier would make an important statement on the position of Roumania as regards the war, and possibly would submit for ratification a recommendation of the cabinet that the nation align herself with the allies against Germany and Austria.

FIVE MILLION NEW TROOPS TO ATTACK KAISER

LONDON, Jan. 28.—That the French and British armies reinforced by nearly 5,000,000 fresh troops, are preparing to launch a terrific offensive against the Germans to the Western theatre of war was reported here today, after it had become known that President Poincare of France paid a secret visit to London last week and conferred with King George, Premier Asquith and War Secretary Kitchener.

The exact date of the general offensive is not known, but it is believed that it will come late in the Winter or early in the spring.

It is stated that the French army for some time has been carefully conserving its artillery ammunition for a new development of the campaign which has been agreed upon. France, in addition to the men now on the firing line, is understood to have in reserve for this more than 1,200,000 of first line troops with a further 1,000,000 in the second line as a reserve when the contemplated grand offensive movement begins.

At the same time Lord Kitchener's army, which is estimated as high as 2,000,000 is expected to be in the field to take its part in giving a decisive turn to the war.

ROUMANIA TAKES STEPS FOR IMMEDIATE ENTRY INTO WAR

LONDON, Jan. 28.—Roumania is expected to enter the war on the side of the allies at any moment.

The announcement that an agreement had been signed in this city for a British war loan of £1,500,000 to Roumania was followed by the news that the Roumania minister had been received by Czar Nicholas in an important conference in Petrograd today, and that the participation of the Balkan kingdom in the conflict was regarded as certain by the Russian war leaders.

The Roumania Parliament, in session today, is expected to be asked to ratify a decision of the Cabinet to join the allies against Germany and Austria.

Geneva dispatches say that a regiment of German Hussars has arrived at Orsova, on the Servo-Roumanian frontier.

The notable feature in today's war news is the further evidence of a German purpose to make another desperate drive toward Paris.

Two armies of 140,000 French and German soldiers are facing each other on the Aisne River along a line stretching from Tracy-Le-Val to Berry-Au-Bac. German prisoners taken in the fighting on the plateau of Craonne revealed that heavy reinforcements had been concentrated south of Laon for a repeated series of assaults against that section of the allies' front lying nearest to the French capital.

GERMAN LOSSES 20,000?

That all the conflicts which took place on Emperor William's birthday resulted in French successes, despite the fact that the Germans had planned to make a great effort, is the emphatic assertion made in the statement issued by the French War Office at Paris this afternoon.

It is asserted that the German losses in the first half of the week on the battle front from the North Sea to Switzerland were to exceed 20,000 men.

"January 27 was the date of the anniversary of the Emperor of Germany," says the introduction to the detailed statement on the military operations. "Our adversaries had announced that on that occasion a great effort would be made. It was made. It did not turn out to their advantage. The day was a complete one for us on the entire extent of the front. All the attacks were repulsed. All the French attacks were successful."

The statement then continues with a detailed summary of the military operations of Wednesday, as follows:

"In Belgium the batteries of the enemy were bombarded and many of his trenches demolished.

"To the south of Lens, the English artillery bombarded the roads and the points of concentration of the German troops. In the sectors of Arras, Albert, Roye, Noyon and Soissons there were intermittent cannonades and rifle engagements. At several points, the enemy has again attempted to leave the trenches to attack. These forays were immediately repulsed by a sharp fire.

"SUFFER SEVERE CHECK."

"In the region of Craonne, the total losses suffered by the Germans on January 25 and January 28 certainly reached the effective of a brigade. (About 6,000 men). The German prisoners have the impression that they have suffered a severe check. Our losses in killed, wounded or missing, for those two days, are in the neighborhood of 800 men. These losses are explained by the fact that the fighting was intense and by the partial collapse, announced yesterday, of an old quarry in which two companies sheltered during the bombardment. Finding themselves walled in, these soldiers were compelled to fall into the hands of the enemy alive during the first part of the attack.

"Our counter-attacks regained for us all of the ground in dispute.

"In the sector of Hebuterne and from Rheims to the Argonne there was an artillery duel in which our heavy artillery mastered the enemy's batteries, as was reported yesterday evening.

"Three attacks in the Argonne at Fontaine Madame, at 6 a. m., 10 a. m. and 1 p. m., were completely repulsed.

"Three German attacks in the forest of Ailly, southeast of St. Mihiel, resulted in the same way. Some detachments of the enemy were repulsed at Parroy and at three.

GAIN NORTH OF SENONES.

"In the Vosges we have made appreciable progress to the north of Senones on the slopes of Signal de la Mere Henri. Our gain was in the neighborhood of four hundred yards.

"It was the same to the southwest of Senones and in the region of Hau de Sapt.

"Near Launois we gained ground and damaged the secondary defences of the enemy.

"We have likewise made progress in Alsace. In the region of Aguenvillier and Burnhaupt-le-Bas the ground gained has been held. Near Cernay an attack of a German battalion was repulsed.

"Judging from the number of dead found on the ground on January 25, January 26 and January 27, to the east of Ypres, at La Bassee, at Craonne, in the Argonne, in the Woevre region and in the Vosges, the losses of the enemy in these three days seem to exceed 20,000."

CAPTURE FRENCH TRENCHES.

German troops in France celebrated Emperor William's birthday by making further strides on the heights of Craonne, according to an official report from the German general staff issued at Berlin this afternoon.

The capture of 400 yards more of French trenches is reported. With the 1,500 yards captured Tuesday the Germans now have more than a mile of the French field works in that region.

Hard fighting has been in progress on the Craonne heights since Monday. The German report says that from Monday to Wednesday 1,500 dead Frenchmen were found on the battlefield and that the Germans took 1,400 prisoners.

The allies are continuing their bombardment of towns held by the Germans on the Belgian coast, says the Berlin report, which follows:

"In the western theatre of war the enemy's artillery bombarded Dixmude, Ypres and Nieuport on the coast of Flanders yesterday.

"We took on the heights of Craonne 600 yards of trenches adjoining those captured on Tuesday. The French attacks here were repulsed without difficulty. The enemy suffered heavy losses. From Monday to Wednesday 1,500 dead Frenchmen were found dead on the battlefield, and we took 1,100 prisoners, including those reported yesterday.

"In the Vosges we repulsed several French attacks in the neighborhood of Senones and Ban-de-Sapt with considerable loss to the enemy. We took one officer and fifty men. Our losses were small."

REPORT RUSSIAN REVERSE.

"In Upper Alsace on the front of the line through Lower Aspach and Heidweiler and the Wurschacker forest the French attacked positions at Aspach, Aimerzwiller, Heidweiler and in the Wurschacker forests. The attacks were repulsed everywhere with heavy losses to the enemy.

"The French retreated in disorder. Their losses were especially heavy south of Heidweiler and Aimerzwiller. We took five machine guns.

"In the eastern theatre of war we repulsed unimportant attacks north and east of Gumbinnen. A Russian division was repulsed near Lievgin, northeast of Sierpec. The situation is otherwise unchanged in Poland."

While the fighting east of the Suez Canal has thus far been confined to skirmishes between the British forces and Turkish troops, it is believed that the main armies will soon be in contact, dispatches from Cairo say. The British commander has selected the position in which he will give battle to the Turkish troops.

Traffic in the Suez Canal is now going on under the restrictions fixed by the British authorities. Vessels are allowed to enter only at stated hours and they are conveyed the full length of the canal. Utmost precautions are being taken to prevent efforts to destroy the canal.

Fighting in the region of Gumbinnen and Pilkallen, East Prussia, has developed into a general battle as a result of the German effort to recapture positions taken by the Russians. The Czar's troops are maintaining their front, however, and are repulsing all the attacks, according to today's dispatches from Petrograd.

Hard fighting continues in the region of Borjimow, west of Warsaw, while in Galicia the Russians are engaged in a conflict along a 100-mile front from Dukla Pass to the town of Wyszkow, almost directly south of Lemberg in the Carpathian mountains.

It is admitted at Petrograd that because of recent heavy attacks by Austrians the Russians who had succeeded in driving their way into Hungary have been forced to retire some miles to the north, where slight skirmishes have resulted in Russian successes.

"Fighting continues in the Malwischken-Lasdehnen district.

"On the right bank of the lower Vistula in northern Poland there has recently been heavy artillery firing and continuous conflicts between advance parties of troops. From the river along the river to the district around Skempe we have harried rear guards of several German battalions.

"On the back of the Vistula on the night of January 25 following a day which brought no important change in a general way, the Germans renewed their attack on our front in the region of Borjimow. All these attacks were repulsed. During one of them some of the enemy's detachments who charged our trenches were put to the bayonet. During the day our artillery bombarded with success the enemy's lines and silenced their batteries in the village of Altanka.

NAVAL CLAIMS CONFLICT.

"In Galicia the fighting is on a more extended scale on all the front along Dura. On the right wing of this front, we captured 100 prisoners and two rapid-firing guns.

"In Bukowina an artillery duel occurred on January 25 in region of Wadjutin, southwest of Kimpolung."

Vice Admiral Beatty's preliminary report, in the hands of the British Admiralty today, declares that not only was the German cruiser Blucher sunk in Sunday's battle in the North Sea, but also that the German cruiser Kolberg was reported by German prisoners as sunk. No British warship, Beatty declares, was lost.

MISS GARMONG THINKS ONLY ABOUT HER LITTLE DAUGHTER

BANGOR, Me., Jan. 28.—Miss Elisabeth Leona Garmong, the central figure in Maine's greatest breach of promise trial which ended in a victory for her in a $115,000 verdict against John Brooks Henderson, Jr., millionaire Washington lawyer and clubman and son of the late United States Senator Henderson of Missouri, says "her only thought is for her little girl."

"I feel naturally gratified at the verdict," she declares. "My first thought when I heard the news of the verdict for me was that it would enable me to give little Mary educational and othr advantages and provide as well as money may do for the child's future.

"We will remain in or near Bangor for the present."

Little Mary is four years old, and shares with her mother in a most remarkable outpouring of felicitations from women not only in Bangor but all over Maine. Both are the centre of interest today, for Maine women have felt warmly for them and apparently are taking great joy in praising the mother for what they term her "courageus fight for vindication."

WOMEN EMBRACE HER.

Today's congratulations from the women followed an unusual demonstration by more than a hundred mothers at the courthouse where they not only gave Miss Garmong an ovation, but embraced and kissed her and grasped her hand to tell her how happy they were that she had won.

The verdict was the largest ever awarded by a New England jury in a heart balm suit. Henderson's counsel shortly after the jury announced its finding filed a motion for a new trial on the formal ground that the verdict was contrary to the law and the evidence and that the damages were excessive.

The case will come up before the Law Court, Maine's highest tribunal, next June, for argument on points of law. John D. Merrill, one of Maine's best known lawyers and counsel for Miss Garmong announced that he would fight the appeal.

Other than the brief statement in which she refers to little Mary and her happiness at being able to provide for her child's future, Miss Garmong refused to discuss her victory today. She explained that her counsel had advised her not to express any views at the present time, and she referred reporters to him.

SYMPATHY FOR GIRL.

Miss Garmong's announcement of her decision to stay in or near Bangor caused a new ripple of happy interest among the women here. They have followed the case closely, and those who were unable to press in the courtroom at the trial have read every line of the testimony.

They make no hesitation about saying that their hearts have been with Miss Garmong from the very first.

Many went to the courthouse chiefly to see little Mary. She was there during much of the trial. They made much of the child who is both pretty and exceedingly bright for her years.

The jury which heard the case is white Miss Garmong sued for $250,000, was made up entirely of men outside of this city—ten farmers, a carpenter and a salesman.

It is said that the verdict was reached on the first ballot; that all were in favor of damages for the plaintiff and that the amount fixed was "Chalkol," each juror giving his opinion as to the amount of damages and the aggregate amount being divided by 12.

GREAT TURKISH ARMY MOVING AGAINST BRITISH AT SUEZ CANAL

LONDON, Jan. 28.—One of the big surprises of the war is the brilliant showing of the Turkish army under the regenerating influence of German officers.

News of the swift advance of the Turks against the Suez Canal has now focussed wide attention upon the exploits of the Turkish troops. In the early stages of the war the lack of transportation facilities and the difficulties of Turkish mobilization prevented the Turks from getting their best troops into Armenia to meet the advance of the Russians. As a result, the early fighting took place upon Turkish soil.

At the present time, with the exception of the operations near the Persian Gulf, the Turks are carrying on the war on Russian, Persian and British soil. Summarized, these are the achievements of the Turkish armies of Enver Pasha:

They have driven the Russians from Armenia; they have invaded Persia and occupy the greater part of the Russian sphere of influence; they have checked the advance of the British expeditionary force at Kornah in the Tigris valley, and they invaded Egypt. Although they have been carrying on a terrific bombardment, the war fleet of England and France has been unable to effect any serious damage upon the forts guarding the western entrance of the Dardanelles.

BATTLE GROUND PICKED.

The nearness of Djemal Pasha's army to the Suez Canal was not suspected until dispatches of Wednesday brought the news from Cairo that fighting was in progress around El Kantara (Alkantara). In fact, outside of military circles it was not known that the Turks had invaded Egypt over the Syrian trade route.

Cairo dispatches today state that the British commander in Egypt has selected the position in which he will give battle to the advancing Turkish forces.

Traffic in the Suez Canal is now going on under the restrictions fixed by the British military authorities. Vessels are allowed to enter only at stated hours and they are conveyed the full length of the canal.

Utmost precautions are being taken to prevent efforts to destroy the canal. The authorities have been advised that with the Turkish troops are German engineers detached from service with the Kaiser's army for that purpose.

The Turkish troops, variously reported as numbering 80,000 and 120,000, are reported to be approaching the canal from three directions, one large force coming over the Aryan route along the Mediterranean coast, and another along the route from El Akaba to Suez, while tribesmen are crossing the region to the east of Ismailia.

TURKS REACH NAKHL.

The skirmish at El Kantara reported yesterday, was between the Turkish troops coming over the coast route and the British forces sent to oppose them. The Turks coming from El Akaba are said to have reached Nakhl, southeast of Suez. Strong British forces have occupied positions along the route from Suez to Nakhl, where there is a small Turkish fort.

Among the British troops concentrated to resist the Turks are several regiments of Australian troops who have been held here instead of being sent to the western theatre.

HOLD HEADS HIGH SO GIRLS CAN BE PROUD, SAYS KAISER

LONDON, Jan. 28.—The Copenhagen correspondent of the Star telegraphs that on Tuesday the Kaiser addressed the reserve infantry of the Twenty-eighth Rhineland Regiment as follows:

I ordered this regiment here to receive my thanks for its fearless bravery. When infantry is attacking with the bayonet and is driving the enemy in front of them, this is a fine deed, but to endure heavy artillery fire for months requires especial courage and exceptional endurance.

You have proved that your bravery has not suffered, and I am happy that the Cologne boys have thus justified the high military reputation the Rhine army corps enjoyed in olden times.

If old Goeben had had this experience, it would have been the greatest joy to him. I expect you always to continue to behave as you have up to the present. I am confident that the Cologne boys will do their best to dash the enemy finally to the ground when our dear God has helped us to victory as I believe and hope He will.

I expect you boys of Cologne to march into your famous old city with your heads high, so that your girls can be proud of you.

Farewell, comrades.

MORE 'TOODLES' LETTERS READ IN FERNCROFT INN SUIT

Harry K. Mansfield Hears His Own Epistles to Miss Ryan Read to the Court.

Mansfield was asked about the letters he sent which closed: "With Love, Harry," and was asked what he meant by signing them that way. He answered, "I meant what you say when you close a letter to a friend. The same as saying 'Your obedient servant.' That would not mean that you would have to go to their house to be their servant.

Q.—Did you ever sign a letter 'Dearly'? A.—No, I never did.

Judge Fessenden informed Attorneys Coakley, Sullivan and Daley that some of the people who were sitting on the seats reserved for witnesses in the back of the court room had been making signs by shaking their heads or in other ways as a means of showing approval or disapproval of witnesses' testimony.

During the recess Deputy Sheriff Fleming was instructed to clear any of the court room that Judge Fessenden had ordered him to clear the court if any laughter was heard or any signs of approval were made.

DENIES USE OF 'SUSH FUND.'

Mansfield, under cross-examination, denied that he had paid "protection money" to the authorities of the town of Middleton, in which his inn is situated.

Attorney Coakley, counsel for Miss Ryan, asked:

"Now I wonder were you paying protection money of $50 and $75 to the chief of police and the selectmen?"

Mansfield answered:

"No."

TELLS OF CHECKS TO 'TOODLES.'

Court opened at 10 o'clock. Mansfield was cross-examined by Attorney Coakley.

Q.—Have you presented to the jury all the checks in your possession which you gave to Miss Ryan? A.—I cannot answer that without looking in bag. There is a number of checks.

Q.—Are there any checks there made out to Miss Ryan? A.—There might be.

Q.—Have you any checks in the bag made out to Miss Ryan? A.—I think not.

Q.—When you gave the checks to Miss Ryan did you make them out to her or payable to "cash"? A.—To the best of my knowledge, half and half.

Q.—Yourself said in his opening that some checks made out to Miss Ryan, were gone? A.—All.

Q.—All? A.—So far as I know.

Q.—As you were looking through the checks did you see one made out for $1,000 to "cash"? That was shortly after the raid at Rowell's in Marblehead. A.—I did not, to the best of my recollection.

Q.—Do you recollect going to the bank with Miss Ryan and cashing a check for $500? A.—No.

Q.—Mr. Sullivan, in his opening, said something about a bank withdrawal list, showing certain things. Have you seen such a list? A.—Yes.

Q.—And I suppose upon that list there are some withdrawals for $50 and $75? A.—There are.

Q.—And by looking up that list you say those checks were given to her? A.—It helps me.

DENIES 'PROTECTION' MONEY.

Q.—Does that withdrawal list, when you looked it up, help about the checks for $50 and $75 on any other occasions? A.—They helped by the month. There are no dates in June on the withdrawal list.

Q.—Have you seen any other list? A.—No.

Q.—Have you seen any list of withdrawals of $50 and $75 that you could give from memory and say: "That $50 was given to Miss Ryan and that $75 to Miss Ryan, and that to someone else"? A.—I can't say.

Q.—Now, I wonder were you paying protection money of $50 and $75 to the chief of police and the selectmen? A.—No.

Q.—During the year when they were raiding places and you had no trouble from the Middletown authorities, were you paying protection?

Sullivan (counsel for Mansfield): I object.

Judge Fessenden: As he is talking about checks I'll admit the question. A.—Not in the least.

BLAMES MISS RYAN FOR RAID.

Q.—Of course, if you were paying protection to the police officials, you wouldn't make it out in checks, would you?

Attorney Sullivan objected, saying: "It's apparent."

Coakley: "We'll agree on that and I won't press the question."

Q.—When you wrote the will, you didn't love Miss Ryan, did you? A.—Not in the sense you mean.

Q.—You know the sense I mean? A.—I think I do.

Q.—When Attorney Sullivan asked you if you understood that Miss Ryan had been an attorney and you asked Sullivan if Frank Chase of the Watch and Ward Society was an attorney, did you intend the jury to understand that Miss Ryan had been Frank Chase of the Watch and Ward? A.—Yes; he told me—

Q.—I don't care what he told you? Have you any knowledge that she ever saw Chase? A.—No.

Q.—Did you want the jury to understand that Miss Ryan was in any way responsible for the raid on Ferncroft by the Watch and Ward society in 1912. A.—I do.

TELLS OF HIS PROPERTY.

Q.—How do you arrive at your worth of $60,000? A.—I figured an endowment life at $10,000 or $12,000 in 1911; $18,000 on the Lafayette street property, $5,000 on another piece of real estate I had in 1911, which has since been sold; $1,200 cash surrender value policy I had payable to me during my party; $5,000 as one-half interest in a retail drug store, and I used $25,000 as the value of Ferncroft—that's all.

Q.—Do you recall the time you spoke of when Miss Ryan went to the Salem Trust Company and found your will lying on top of a safe deposit vault? A.—I remember the time in 1912.

Q.—How many times did she go with you to the Salem Trust Company during the years that she was at Ferncroft? A.—Two or three.

Q.—What items have you got now? A.—Today?

Q.—Yes. A.—A margin account and in a loan company.

Q.—Ferncroft is capitalized at $50,000? A.—Yes.

Q.—A Mr. Reardon of Salem is the president of that corporation? A.—Yes.

Q.—Is that the same Mr. Reardon who is associated with Mr. Sullivan, your attorney? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you say you had $1,000 in each of ten savings banks? A.—I had up to the time it was drawn out.

Q.—Now, Mr. Mansfield, some time in 1913, before Miss Ryan was taken ill, did you sit down with her in a room at the Ferncroft Inn, and there, in her presence, make out an inventory of securities you had? A.—I don't remember.

Attorneys Coakley and Daley conferred. Attorney Daley handed Mr. Coakley a small book of the memoranda type, from which Attorney Coakley read the alleged inventory and questioned Mansfield about stocks alleged to have been owned by him. To some of the questions as to his ownership of certain stocks he answered: "Cannot say" and "I'm not sure."

Q.—Do you say you never told Miss Ryan, after that investigation of the securities, that you could raise $161,000 on them? A.—Absolutely no.

DENIES TELLING OF LOVE.

Q.—Did you tell a lady, after you had seen Miss Ryan on the stage in a show called "The Midnight Belle," that you were still in love with Bessie? A.—I did not.

Q.—Do you recall a lady named Miss Casey who was at the Ferncroft Inn with Mr. Linehan and who was introduced to people there while Miss Ryan was at Ferncroft living with you? A.—No; to the best of my knowledge, I do not know a lady named Casey. I cannot recall the name.

Q.—Did you buy some copies of a paper called "Review" in which Miss Ryan's picture appeared? A.—I did buy twenty copies of a paper called "The Review," but I did not buy them myself or because Miss Ryan's picture was in them. I bought them for Mr. Sullivan.

CATARRH GERMS EASILY KILLED

ONLY WAY TO STOP THIS DISEASE FOREVER IS TO DESTROY THE GERMS THAT CAUSE IT.

By A Specialist.

If you have catarrh and want to get rid of it you must kill the germs which cause catarrh. Ointments, dieting, ointments, sprays, creams, douches, etc., fail because they overlook this fact. They all help by giving temporary relief, but they do not kill the germ life that has found lodgement in your head, nose, throat, and could not destroy it if they did.

The best known way of destroying the dangerous germs of catarrh and consequently ending the disease itself is to breathe into the air passages of your nose and throat the pleasant, penetrating air of Hyomei (pronounced High-o-me), which is made from pure oil of Eucalyptus combined with other powerful healing, antiseptic and germicidal ingredients. You breathe it through a little hard rubber pocket inhaler which comes with every complete treatment. Every time you inhale the sweet fragrant air of Hyomei it kills germs. Hyomei being so volatile, reaches into your swollen, inflamed, germ-laden membranes as vapor which not only reduces the swelling and inflammation and opens your nostrils and throat and head air passages, but will absolutely and positively destroy every trace of Catarrh germ life it reaches. Riker-Jaynes Drug Stores and many other leading druggists in the vicinity are so sure of the Hyomei getting rid of Catarrh, Bronchitis or Throat Troubles that they will refund the money to any catarrh sufferer who will call at their store and say that after using a complete outfit they have not had satisfactory results. Hyomei can not be found in any other way, while you have the matter in mind, just get this notice and take it to your druggist and get the complete Hyomei outfit which includes the free "inhaler." This makes it easy to breathe Hyomei and so get into the air passages and you can begin at once to drive the catarrh germs and everything else from your system forever.—Riker-Jaynes Drug Stores, Boston.—Advertisement.

A Never Failing Way to Banish Ugly Hairs

(Aids to Beauty)

No woman is immune to superfluous growths, and because these are likely to appear at any time, it is advisable to always have some delatone powder handy to use when the occasion arises. A paste is made with some of the powder and water and spread upon the hairy surface, in about 2 minutes this is carefully removed and the skin washed. You will then find that your skin is entirely free from hair or fuzz. Be sure, however, to get real delatone.—Advertisement.

Millions for Mrs. Thomas Widow Chief Beneficiary

Will Disposing of $4,000,000 Estate Is Filed at Mineola, L. I.

Mrs. Helen Kelly Gould Thomas, widow of Ralph Hill Thomas, the son of Joseph B. Thomas of Boston, receives the bulk of her husband's $4,000,000 estate under the terms of his will, which has just been filed for probate at Mineola, L. I. After a number of minor bequests the will stipulates that the rest of the estate goes to the young and attractive widow.

Mrs. Thomas is the divorced wife of Frank J. Gould of the Gould family of millionaires. Mr. Thomas at the time of his death, on December 31 was an official of the Sugar Trust and was a nephew of Washington Thomas, head of the trust.

The couple's wedding in 1910 was not only unexpected, but came under unusual circumstances. The ceremony was performed in the bride's New York apartments under guard of nine detectives in the pay of her former husband, Mr. Gould, who was seemingly fearful less an attempt be made to carry off his three children, who attended the wedding.

The ceremony over, the detectives scurried about the house, gathered up the children and rushed them in an auto to the home of Helen Miller Gould at Irvington-on-the-Hudson.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas, for their honeymoon journey, made a tour of the world. On their return to San Francisco Mrs. Thomas created a stir by her solicitude for a chow dog, objections having been made to her keeping the animal in her hotel apartments. It was said the care of the dog cost her $3 a day.

Mrs. Helen Kelly Gould Thomas and the late Ralph Hill Thomas, who left her the bulk of his estate.

BEER UPHELD BY HARVARD JUNIOR

Following the latest attack on the use of beer at Harvard class affairs, the so-called "Beer party" at Harvard College came back to the fray today with a counter-attack on "soft drinks" and coffee.

One of the Juniors, writing to the Harvard Crimson under the name of "Hampden Hall," which is a private dormitory, says that, quantity for quantity, "soft drinks" are worse than four-per cent. beer and that a cup of breakfast coffee hurts a human more than two bottles of beer a month.

HAIL SOFT DRINKS.

"In weighing the pros against the cons as concerns beer at class "smokers," it is well to keep one point in mind: the amount of beer absorbed by the individual at a class smoker has as negligible an alcohol content that is is safe to say a man does not risk a constitutional breakdown at a result," writes "Hampden Hall." "Furthermore, an equal amount of so-called soft drinks, romping in all its effervescence through the channels of ones internal mechanism, had an effect more disastrous to the private welfare than that instigated by the four-per-cent. of alcohol in beer.

"A cup of coffee every morning is far more injurious to the system than two bottles of beer a month. Why have we overlooked an anti-coffee campaign?

"Accordingly, though there is a fair amount of justice in a plea for no beer, based on personal opinion, it seems rather absurd to argue the point on the basis of a wrecked constitution."

"HARVARD IDEAL."

Lloyd Reilly of the Sophomore class writes facetiously: "Germany drinks beer; Russia vodka; France absinthe; English ale. The obvious moral is—if you seek peace and prosperity eschew the demon rum!

"I do not seek to emulate Mrs. Nation—the eminently Illustrious "Hatchet Carrie," nor am I an embryo Anthony Comstock. Yet I believe in total abstinence for college men. However, the question of total abstinence is not necessary for the present discussion. It is an undisputed fact that to countenance Harvardian beer-drinking at smokers and dinners is to create an undesirable impression on the outside world and particularly in the minds of parents and boys who are preparing to choose an 'alma mater.'

"The actions of undergraduates, as well as of graduates, go a long way toward making this decision. The present question is not simply one as to the morality of undergraduates or whether it is or is not harmful to quaff the amberous liquor. The question is this: are we willing that drinking shall be set up—as it surely will be by the outside world, if continued—as a Harvard ideal."

L. Brentano of the Freshmen says beer is an "artificial and unnecessary way in which to secure conditions of geniality."

HARVARD "WETS" AND "DRYS" TO DEBATE IN UNIVERSITY FORUM

The Harvard Crimson, literally swamped with communications pro and con on the subject of beer serving at the college banquets and smokers, has decided that in future its correspondents must not mention beer or their communications will be berated out of existence.

So strong are the "water wagon" boys that the Student Council has approved the holding of a University Forum in the Union next month to roughly thresh out the subject.

In the meanwhile the wets and the drys are mashalling their forces and the Forum promises to be the most spirited meeting held in the college in many years.

Cold Weather Due in Boston Today

Zero weather is expected in Boston and New England today, unless the cold wave, headed eastward from the Central and northwest States is sidetracked on its way. Forecasters believe this depression will split into two parts, one centering in New York the other in Tennessee and northern Mississippi.

VETO BY WILSON ON IMMIGRATION

ters of legislation leave me no choice but to dissent.

A RADICAL DEPARTURE.

"In two particulars of vital consequence of this bill embodies a radical departure from the traditional and long-established policy to this country, a policy in which our people have conceived the very character of their government to be expressed, the very mission and spirit of the nation in respect of its relations to the peoples of the world outside their borders. It seeks to all but close entirely the gates of asylum which always have been open to those who could find nowhere else the right and opportunity of constitutional agitation for what they conceived to be the natural and inalienable rights of man; and it excludes those to whom the opportunity of elementary education has been denied, without regard to their character, their purposes, or their natural capacity.

"Restrictions like these, adopted earlier in our history as a nation, would have very materially altered the sourse and cooled the humane ardors of our politics.

"The right of political asylum has brought to this country many a man of noble character and elevated purpose who was marked as an outlaw in his own less fortunate land, and who has yet become an ornament to our citizenship and to our public councils. The children and compatriots of these illustrious Americans must stand amazed to see the representatives of their nation now resolved, in the fullness of our national strength and at the maturity of our great institutions, to risk turning such men back from our shores, without test of quality or purpose.

"It is difficult for me to believe that the full effect of this feature of the bill was realized when it was framed and adopted, and it is impossible for me to assent to it in the form in which it is here passed.

"The literacy test and the tests and restrictions which accompany it constitute an even more radical change in the policy of the nation. Hitherto we have generously kept our doors open to all who are not united by reason of disease or incapacity for self-support or such personal records and antecedents as were likely to make them a menace to our peace and order or to the wholesome and offensive relationships of life.

"In this bill it is proposed to turn away from tests of character and of quality and impose tests which excludes and restrict, for the new tests here embodied are not tests of quality or of character or of personal fitness, but tests of opportunity. Those who come seeking opportunities are not to be admitted unless they already have had one of the chief of the opportunities they seek—the opportunity of education. The object of such provisions is restriction, not selection.

"If the people of this country have made up their minds to limit the number of immigrants by arbitrary tests and so reverse the policy of all the generations of Americans that have gone before them, it is their right to do so. I am their servant and have no license to stand in their way. But I do not believe that they have. I respectfully submit that no one can quote their mandate to that effect.

DOUBTS NATION'S ASSENT.

"Has any political party ever avowed a policy of restriction in this fundamental matter, gone to the country on it, and been commissioned to control this legislation? Does this bill rest upon the conscious and universal assent and desire of the American people? I doubt it.

"It is because I doubt it that I make bold to dissent from it. I am willing to abide by the verdict, but not until it has been rendered. Let the platforms of parties speak out upon this policy and the people pronounce their wish. The matter is too fundamental to be settled otherwise.

"I have no pride of opinion in this matter. I am not foolish enough to profess to know the wishes and ideals of America better than the body of her chosen representatives know them.

"I only want instructions direct from thos whose fortunes, with ours and all men's, are involved.

"WOODROW WILSON."

REFERRED TO COMMITTEE.

Following the reading of the immigration veto message the House referred it to the Committee on Immigration and Chairman Burnett notified the House that he expected the committee to report it back one wk from today. Thursday, with a motion to override the President's vto. Representative Burnett said this would give absent members ample time to return to Washington to be present when the vote to override is taken.

What Thin Folks Should Do To Gain Weight

Physician's Advice for Thin, Undeveloped Men and Women

Thousands of people suffer from excessive thinness, weak nerves and feeble stomachs who, having tried various flesh-makers, food-fads, physical culture stunts and rub-on creams, resign themselves to lifelong skinniness and think nothing will make them fat. Yet their case is not hopeless. A recently discovered regenerative force makes fat and also builds firm, healthy flesh, and is also unequalled for repairing the waste of sickness or faulty digestion and for strengthening the nerves. This remarkable discovery is called Sargol. Six strength-giving, fat-producing elements of acknowledged merit have been combined in this wonderful preparation, which is endorsed by eminent physicians and used by prominent people everywhere. It is absolutely harmless, inexpensive and efficient.

A month's systematic use of Sargol should increase flesh and strength by correcting faults of digestion and by sending hightest-powered fats into the blood. Increased nourishment is obtained from the food eaten, and the skinny limbs, neck and bust soon are rounded. Casting dangers aside, surely Sargol is the one thing to do.

While this new preparation has given splendid results as a nerve-tonic and vitalizer, it should not be used by persons under 100 pounds who wish to gain at least ten pounds of flesh.—Advertisement.

BINNEY LEFT ALL TO HIS WIDOW

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Harold O. Binney, the eccentric patent lawyer of Newport, R. I., and this city, who died November 22 last after serving a short term on Blackwells Island for his refusal to put up a bond to keep the peace, gave the bulk of his estate to his widow, Elise Martin Binney of Mount Vernon. He left nothing to his divorced wife, Gertrude N. Gray of No. 29 West Twelfth street.

In his will he wrote this paragraph:

"I desire my wife to have no other responsibility or obligation than her own conscience, knowing that to be of unusually clear and true validity, and I make her my residuary legatee."

Of his sister, Nina Binney Eyre, he wrote this in his will:

"I give and release to her all my fourteenth interest in the house at Bayhead and my forgiveness for her unfortunate attempts at coercion in my affairs."

"As to myself," Binney wrote in his will, "I request that I be not buried, but, if agreeable to my wife, utilized as to my corpse in such a way as may be best for science in the opinion of some physiological chemist, rather than a mere medical doctor—or burned, and my ashes strewn in some garden near the sea where its solids may prove of use to the shrubs and flowers.

"I request that no needless expense be wasted on a church ceremony or on the trappings of woe, I died, as I have lived, I trust, a good infidel."

Binney estimated that his estate might be as small as $20,000 and might be as large as $50,000. If it is as large as the latter figure he directs that all minor cash gifts be doubled in amount. If it is as small as $20,000 he directs that all cash gifts be reduced one half.

His body was cremated and the ashes placed in a silver urn.

CONCORD, N. H., Jan. 28.—The law firm of Martin, Howe & Donigan has filed suit in the Merrimack Superior Court here against Harry K. Thaw for $1,500, claimed as the balance on a bill for legal services. The attorneys say their original bill to Thaw was for $2,100 and that there is a balance of $1,500 due them.

How to Cure Rheumatism

Here is a prescription for rheumatism (to be mixed at home) used all over the U. S. for many years and said to be the surest known remedy; neutralizes acid in the blood and gives speedy relief after first dose. "One ounce of Toris compound and one ounce syrup of Sarsaparilla. Put these two ingredients in half pint of whiskey. Use a tablespoonful before each meal and at bed time." Get ingredients at any drug store. Genuine Toris comes in one ounce sealed yellow packages.

Surest for Coughs and Colds

Don't experiment on a bad cough or cold, it is very risky. The following formula easily mixed at home makes one of the surest and quickest cough and cold remedies obtainable, often curing the worst cough or cold in a day. Pine as a medicine is as old as the Bible but here in best form. "Two ounces of Glycerine and half an ounce of Globe Pine Compound (Concentrated Pine); add these to half pint of Whiskey. Use a teaspoonful frequently as required. (Smaller doses for children.) Be sure to get the genuine Globe Pine Compound (Concentrated Pine). Cut it up only in half ounce bottles, each enclosed in a screw-top cap.

Frost Bites, Corns and Sore Feet

Don't endure foot agony. Here is a remedy for quick results. It works through the blood, removing the cause. "Two tablespoonfuls of Cuticle compound in warm foot bath." Almost instant relief for aching and smarty feet; corns and callouses can be treated off. Acts like magic as a local application for sore tendons, chilblains, and frost bites. Guild, who said that last year Russia imported goods from Germany to the value of $2,000,000,000 and that she spent a month of each year in London, Paris, Berlin and Vienna, declared that Russia's commercial relations with Germany were ruined by the war and that Russia's commercial relations with that country would be severed for years to come.

CHAPTER I.

Copyright, 1913, by the Star Company

JOHN HAMILTON had married for love, and he was as much in love with his wife at the end of six months of wedded life as he had been when he bestowed upon her his name and what he could spare of his moderate income. And Isabel, his wife, loved him dearly. Perhaps this was one reason why had a sense of chagrin when any or occurred to mar the calm of their united lives. Like many other women she had supposed that marriage to the man one loved spelt perfect happiness. If one were not happier married than single, then why marry?

To the woman to whom happiness is the goal there come many periods of disillusionment, and such a one had come to Isabel Hamilton.

It was at the breakfast table. Many conjugal disputes originate at the breakfast table, as all wedded couples know. John remarked that the cream for the cereal was thin and watery in appearance.

"One doesn't get such cream nowadays as we used to have when I was a boy," he observed. His dark eyes were not as bright as they were when he smiled, and his well-shaped mouth wore a discontented curve.

"We don't buy pure cream," Isabel told him, "but use what comes with the top of the bottle of milk. I had to let Cynthia open the bottle as soon as it came this morning, as the cream did not have time to rise."

He asked the question not because he cared especially, but because he felt—as good husbands sometimes do—in a slightly contentious mood this morning.

"No," replied his wife. She, too, had a swift sensation of resentment as he asked the question. Why should John care whether all the milk brought into the house was used yesterday or not? That was her affair—the business of the wife and housekeeper.

"You know," she added, by way of explanation, "that we had a custard pie for dinner last night, and, though it was a small one, it took a pint of milk."

TWO QUARTS OF MILK CAUSES A 'RUMPUS'

"And we get two quarts every day, don't we?" the husband responded. "I should think that would be enough for any cooking and to leave some over for the next morning. I can't imagine what becomes of it all."

It was not like him to be so petty, his wife reflected.

"What is the matter with you, Jack?" she said. "We have been married for six months and you have never before accused me of dissipating in milk."

She tried to laugh, but she was not really a bit amused. And her husband, hearing the laugh, knew that she was vexed. All at once it seemed to him preposterous that he, the man who put up the money to run their small establishment, should be reproved for asking things that he had a perfect right to know. He set down his coffee cup and loosed across the table sternly. The fact that his wife was pretty, that her eyes were very blue and her cheeks very pink, and that her hair waved bewitchingly about her face did not soften his heart. For there was in those blue eyes a gleam that was not of tenderness.

"Really, Isabel," he said slowly, yet with an emphasis that betokened displeasure, "since I pay for the materials that are brought into this flat, need you be surprised if I occasionally take the liberty of making an inquiry as to what becomes of the way in which they are disposed of?"

"If I undertake my housekeeping allowance you might have a right to investigate," the wife retorted. "But you know that each month I have a little something left from it."

"And you know that I have never asked you what you do or mean to do with a penny of that little something," John reminded her. "It is yours to spend as you please, and my only stipulation is that it does not go for expenses or bills that I am supposed to meet. It is yours to spend just as you like and on anything you like. As I am generous enough to insist upon this, I cannot see why you should resent my inquiring about the quantity of milk we buy, and what becomes of it."

The wife sighed. "Well, she said, "I don't know that the milk goes. Yesterday I made a cake, and that took a cup of it; I drank a glass of it when I came home from my walk in the afternoon, and that accounted for another half pint; you took a glass at bedtime last night and a pint went for custard. There!" triumphantly. "You see that accounts for most of it —for, of course, some was used for the porridge yesterday morning."

THE WIFE RESENTS THE MAN'S INTERFERENCE

"Certainly not more than a half-pint," the man said judicially. "So you will please notice that there is at least a pint that went astray. Now, where, Probably Cynthia drank it," he added grimly. "All colored people like milk. You should watch your servant, my dear."

"I can hardly tell her not to take anything that I have never seen her take," the young housekeeper protested.

Cynthia was her first maid, and an inefficient one at that, which is why when she was paid lower wages than a competent servant would have received. Yet the mistress had a secret dread of incurring Cynthia's wrath. It would be disagreeable and inconvenient to have her leave.

"That's what I say about women," declared the husband, pushing back his chair and rising from the table. "They will not run their homes on business principles, and if a man dares suggest that they change their methods, they are peeved. They have too business sense. Now in my office if an employe were to take advantage——"

"Oh!" the wife interrupted him, "What do I care about your office? I am sorry my management does not suit you. But it's the best I am capable of!"

John glanced at his watch, though it is to be doubted if he noticed what the time was.

"I am going," he observed coldly. Bending over his wife's chair he kissed her on the forehead, as she did not lift her face to his.

"Good morning!" he said stiffly.

"Good morning!" she returned as stiffly.

It was the first time they had ever parted for the day with hard feeling on either side.

MRS. BEIDEL TELLS WOMEN

Shippensburg, Pa.—"It was several years ago that I started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I then suffered terribly every month. My husband bought me a bottle of it and it helped me right away. Then after my second child was born I had a female trouble very badly and I used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and in a short time was cured and have been in excellent health since. I always praise this Compound whenever I have an opportunity as I know it helped me and will help others. Lately I have given the Compound to my daughter and I wish all suffering women would take it and be convinced of its worth."—Mrs. JAMES A. BEIDEL, 113 N. Penn Street, Shippensburg, Pa.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, and today holds the record of being the most successful remedy for female ills we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., seem to prove this fact.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to any of the women whose testimonial letters we are constantly publishing. They will tell you their experience and give you confidence to try the medicine.

Have Our Girls Lost Charm?

Why Is It That Thousands of Young Men with Fair Salaries Do Not Marry?

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DO the girls of this generation deserve the admiration of men?

Do the men of today care for the type of woman who prefers dignity and charm to freakishness and fads?

Who is to blame for the fact that thousands of young men who earn fair salaries live in hall bedrooms and find their only relaxation "in playing cards with the boys," or "shooting a little Kelly pool," while the girls flutter in groups to the movies or sit at home and bewail their fates because they do not know the "Sally Waters" type of nice young man?

The great fault in the relation of the sexes today is that they are so very differently trained. They are brought up on a different set of catechwords. As Robert Louis Stevenson says: "They are taught to follow different virtues, to hate different vices, to place their ideal, even for each other, in different achievements. When a horse has run away, and the two flustered people in the gig have each possessed themselves of a rein, we know the end of that conveyance will be in the ditch."

Modern social existence is exactly comparable to Stevenson's "gig in the ditch." The whole object of a liberal education today seems to be to magnify the difference between boys and girls and arouse in them a strong consciousness of this difference at the same time that it obscures their knowledge of one another.

ALL YOUNG GIRLS LONG FOR GOOD TIMES

Girls are shown a small field of experience and taught a very strict code of judgment for all actions. Men are shown a far wider cross-section of life and given a proportionately wider code of morals.

Then, what more natural than that two young people looking at one another across a gulf of self-conscious natural differences and differences cultivated in their training of morals should fail to understand each other? Young girls long for platonic friendship—but their natural craving for masculine society is added an actual need for masculine support as well as a question of social failure unless that masculine escort can be produced. Girls are also trained and cultivated their ambitions into the way of desiring to be the envy of all beholders. They do not seek feminine society purely on the basis of their taste and mutual admiration, but they measure women by their charm for other men.

What is the result of these two general differences?

A girl goes out with a young man and takes far too much interest in his ability to spend, dance and "show her a good time" in general. She is all too likely to prefer the society of a handsome, amusing good-for-nothing to that of the unromantical man who is worth having. This is because she has been trained to admire the showy externals which make a good impression on the casual observer.

With "show" as a standard and "stuff" as a measure of success, a girl does not stop to investigate the real character of the man with whom she is dealing. Nor does she herself get a chance to appeal to him. A little ability to make women feel to his love-making gives a man vast power over the opposite sex, and like all power that is not earned by actual merit, this is abused.

When these tinsel virtues appeal to women, what more natural than that sterling quality should find itself a bit neglected in feminine society, and should either turn hermit or satisfy itself in the society of other men of like stability and like social unpopularity?

The man who earns $25 a week could afford to take a girl for whom he cared to the theatre if she would sit in the balcony, a pound box of candy would be a gift well within his means, but if the girl has once mentioned to him the delights of an auto trip to the beach or a box party or a dozen American Beauties some lucky friend of hers received from a wealthy admirer, immediately between the $25 a week man and the girl for whom he might care the breach widens.

On the other hand, this same $25 a week young man strolls up the avenue and looks with admiration on the limousine beauties and the stunningly clad daughters of millionaires. Immediately the girl who is earning $15 a week, or who is being supported by a father who earns but a moderate salary, longs to emulate the well-dressed beauty who has attracted the desired masculine attention.

WHY THE WORTH-WHILES GET LEFT AT HOME

The girl of sterling simplicity, the girl of homely ability, the girl of real common-sense is the one men truly admire in their heart of hearts—but they express too much admiration for externals. And across the gap this lacking has made between the sexes girls have no way of guessing what masculine nature really craves.

Men advertise their success by the elegant trappings of their women folk. Boys impress other boys by the inert prettiness and cheap charm of the girls with whom they are seen.

All of this repels worth-while men and leaves worth-while girls a foolish feeling that they must ape the tawdry tinsel that attracts or stay at home and be neglected.

Why is this? Who is at fault for these trifling differences, these silly misunderstandings which hold men of calibre and women of character apart?

I think the first fault lies with mothers who fail in their sacred duty to give their boys and girls an absolutely square deal.

The next fault lies with fathers who allow a warped up theory of ambition and efforts to stop and try to make the younger generation look at things from a slightly viewpoint.

But most of all, boys and girls, young men and women, have themselves to blame. If they would be honest with themselves, if they would dare to be individuals instead of exponents of a type or mere members of a sex, it would be far simpler for them to understand each other. Simplicity and honesty speak no language of sex, but one of universal humanity.

Do the things it is natural for you to do, express your own nature, cultivate the best in yourself, don't try to attract by the method someone else employs, don't have a false standard of values and try to live on a scale you can't afford, and you will find understanding and being understood by the other sex a vastly simplified matter.

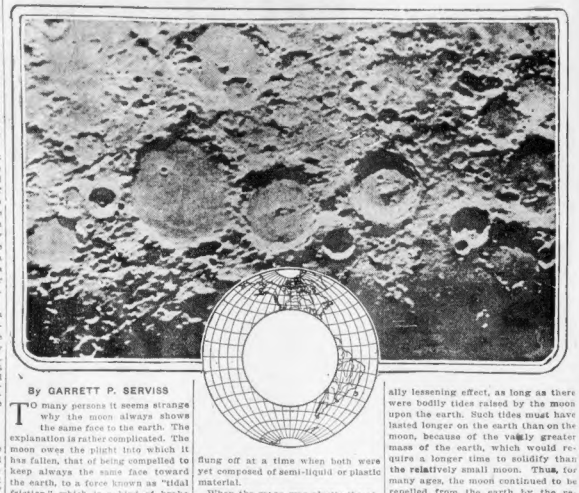
The Moon's Weird Spell

In Time Its Influence Will Cause the Earth to Keep One Face Always Toward It

A telescope photograph of the surface of the moon and, below, diagram showing relative sizes of earth and moon



By GARRETT P. SERVISS

TO many persons it seems strange why the moon always shows the same face to the earth. The explanation is rather complicated. The moon owes the plight into which it has fallen, that of being compelled to keep always the same face toward the earth, to a force known as "tidal friction," which is a kind of brake applied to all bodies rotating on an axis in the presence of another body that pulls upon them by gravitation. The earth itself feels this brake of tidal friction, which is screwed on, as if in vengeful spirit, by the moon, and the time will come when our proud planet will, in its turn, be compelled to keep always one face toward its now submissive, but then triumphant, satellite.

When that remote epoch arrives the day and the month will be of equal length, and the earth and the moon, staring into one another's immovable faces, will stiffly tread the solemn round about their common centre of gravity, as if they were a pair of masks nailed to the opposite ends of a revolving rod.

That the tidal "wave" raised by the moon in the earth's oceans should act as a brake upon our rotating globe will be evident to you if you watch the billows rolling in upon the shore when the tide is rising, and reflect that their force must, upon the whole, be directed in opposition to the earth's motion of rotation, for the general direction in which the tide wave travels is from east to west, while the earth rotates from west to east. The final result must be the lengthening of the day, but the force of the tidal friction is so small relatively to the force of the earth's rotation that many millions of years will lapse before its effects become practically evident.

But, you may say, if tidal friction is so slight how can it already have curbed the rotation of the moon? The answer is that it was not slight in the union upon the moon in the early stages of its history. In the first place the tidal force of the earth upon the moon is about eighty times as great as the tidal force of the moon upon the earth. This results from the fact that the earth is eighty times as heavy as the moon. In the next place there is little doubt that ages ago the moon was a mass of molten rock, revolving round the earth much closer than it is today. In fact, there is reason to think that the moon is a piece of the earth, flung off at a time when both were yet composed of semi-liquid or plastic material.

When the moon was plastic the attraction of the earth produced upon it enormous tides, which were not confined, like those of today, to a surface film of liquid, but which distorted the entire body of the moon. The braking action of such tides would be tremendous, and the consequence was that, probably before it had solidified, the moon lost nearly all it rotational motion around its axis, and began to keep one side always toward the earth. It may be that the globe of the moon, when its rotation was thus arrested, became permanently drawn out into an egg-shaped figure, having its longer axis pointed toward the earth.

The earth escaped the fate that it inflicted upon its satellite and child because of its vastly greater mass, which enabled it to retain its rotational force in spite of tidal friction. But, as I have already mentioned, the earth's turn will come, if it lasts long enough.

There is another very curious effect of tidal friction to which the moon has been subjected, if as is now generally believed it originated from the earth. When the two were both still molten hot, they mutually raised great bodily tides upon one another. The earth being by far the larger body felt the indirect effects of these tides less than the moon did. Without the use of a mathematical diagram it is impossible to show how it happened, but it can be mathematically proved that one of these effects was that the tidal protuberances produced by the moon's attraction upon the earth served to drive the moon farther away.

This action continued, with gradually lessening effect, as long as there were bodily tides raised by the moon upon the earth. Such tides must have lasted longer on the earth than on the moon, because of the vastly greater mass of the earth, which would require a longer time to solidify than the relatively small moon. Thus, for many ages, the moon continued to be repelled from the earth by the reaction of the very tides which it itself produced. Even today it can be shown that our oceanic tides exercise extremely slight, yet calculable force, tending to drive the moon still farther from its mother earth.

His Last Straw

"Em, for goodness sake get those kids to bed!" grumbled Papa Jenkins, who had vainly tried to settle down for a quiet five minutes with the war news.

The younger Jenkins went aloft, and there seemed some prospect of peace until Harold, the eldest, who had been allowed half an hour grace, began butting in with his ridiculous queries.

"What on earth do you want now?" demanded the harassed parent, as he desperately flung down the paper.

"Well, dad, did Adam only have one name?"

"Of course he did. Now, look here, any more silly questions and you can go to bed, too, my son."

"Yes, pa," but can't I ask a little bit more about that question?"

"Get on with it," said the patient pa. And, mind, this is the very last."

"Well, was Adam his first name or his last name?"

THAW'S COUNSEL EXPECTS TO WIN

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—"Our efforts will be concentrated upon the question of Harry Thaw's sanity. We know he is sane. We know we can prove it."

Thus John B. Stanchfield, Thaw's chief counsel, sets forth his attitude on the Thaw case today. Thaw, happier than he has been for nine years because of the removal of William Travers Jerome, today is in the Tombs and there will stay until February 13, when he will be put on trial on the charge of conspiring to escape from Matteawan.

Meanwhile his quartette of lawyers—Mr. Stanchfield, Morgan J. O'Brien, Morgan J. O'Brien, Jr., and Abel I. Smith—will plan ways and means to introduce the question of their client's sanity that it will in some way supersede the conspiracy charge and not only offset that, but nullify the commitment of Justice Dowling which sent Thaw to the mad house.

Thaw when arraigned before Supreme Court Judge Davis pleaded not guilty and was remanded to the Tombs to await trial. Justice Davis announced that he failed to concur with Mr. Stanchfield that the statute which made it obligatory that a prisoner in whom signs of dementia were apparent should be sent to Bellevue Hospital was applicable in this case.

Franklin Kennedy, representing the State, declared he understood Mr. Stanchfield to agree that no application for bail would be made, and depending upon the good faith of that promise he was willing to withdraw the motion that Thaw be sent back to Matteawan to await trial.

Thaw was thereupon taken back to cell No. 229 on the homicide tier.

ACTRESS TELLS SECRET

A Well-Known Actress Tells How She Darkened Her Gray Hair and Promoted Its Growth With a Simple Home Made Mixture.

Miss Blanche Rose, a well-known actress, who darkened her gray hair with a simple preparation which she mixed at home, in a recent interview at Chicago, Ill., made the following statement: "Any lady or gentleman can darken their gray hair and make it soft and glossy with this simple recipe, which they can mix at home. To a half-pint of water add 1 oz. of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and ¼ oz. of glycerine. These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until it becomes the required shade. This will make a gray haired person look 20 years younger. It is also fine to promote the growth of hair, relieves itching and scalp humors and is excellent for dandruff and falling hair."—Advertisement.

Walsh May Submit Knowlton B. & M. Bill

Governor Walsh has intimated that he might send to the Legislature another message accompanying the bill presented by ex-Chief Justice Knowlton for the reorganization of the Boston & Maine.

There is some doubt whether the rules of the Legislature will permit it to consider that bill in a hearing given on the Governor's previous message, which merely called the attention of the Great and General Court to the fact that a bill might be expected.

Shows Minimum Wage Aids Girls

"Hundreds of girls have been helped by the minimum wage," declared Professor Arthur M. Holcombe of Harvard, member of the Massachusetts Minimum Wage Commission, to the Massachusetts Reform Club at Young's. "The minimum wage means to these girls all the difference between a miserable existence and decent American living conditions.

"Employers as a class want to pay the going rate if assured that their competitors will pay it. The employers who want to grind down their employes are in a minority. If the public has to pay for the minimum wage it is its duty to pay. Up to the present we have not interfered with the employer who wants to beat down the girl who needs work, but in my judgment it is time we did."

BARRY EXPLAINS PARDON OF HALL

Governor Walsh's attitude on the pardon of John A. Hall, the Southbridge bank embezzler who was paroled from the Charlestown State Prison, was made public for the first time in a statement made to the Legislative Committee on Rules by former Lieutenant-Governor Barry. That the Governor was guided absolutely by the decision of the Council was the substance of Mr. Barry's statement.

"When the matter of the Hall pardon was first considered," said Mr. Barry, "the Council requested Governor Walsh to submit the matter to them. At that time, mention of the case was made to the Governor from his own source and that was in a letter received by him from an inmate of the prison requesting him to pardon Hall for the good that Hall had done at the prison.

"The Governor abided by the request of the Council and laid the matter before them. He said at that time that, in view of their request, he was giving the Council the opportunity to consider the Hall matter thoroughly and that he would abide by their decision. The Council voted to pardon Hall and Governor Walsh, when he signed the pardon, abided by the decision of the Council, which had thoroughly investigated the case."

Mr. Barry appeared before the Rules Committee in support of an order for an investigation of the Hall pardon and of all other pardons granted by the Council of last year. "The honor of the Council of which I was a member and of the Governor has been assailed," he said. "And it is the duty of this committee to investigate the matter to the very bottom.

"It is your duty to show not only the people who are in the Charlestown State Prison, but those who ought to be there that money cannot liberate them. In my long experience as a newspaper man, as a member of the Council and finally as Lieutenant-Governor, I have proven to my own satisfaction that in the history of Massachusetts no man ever bought his way out of Charlestown."

Referring to Governor Walsh, Mr. Barry said: "No Governor has ever served the people so honorably, so faithfully and with more ability than the present Governor of Massachusetts."

Why Cadum Is Good for Skin Diseases

The important thing in treating many skin diseases is to keep water away from the inflamed parts and make the covering as air tight as possible. This, according to a very distinguished New York physician, seems to kill the germ and set up the healing process quickly. Cadum, the well-known skin remedy supplies that kind of a covering and keeps out the air. This covering consists of petrolatum and white wax, which Cadum contains. Two other ingredients of Cadum are zinc oxide, which dries up the water that comes from the sores, and oil of cade, which is one of the oldest and best-known remedies for Eczema. Physicians everywhere employ oil of cade more often, perhaps, than any other one thing in treating Eczema. Cadum costs 10c for a trial box, while the 25c box contains nearly four times as much as the 10c size.

MANN THREATENS TO JUMP TO FEDS

Leslie Mann and Charlie Deal have until next Tuesday to consider the terms of a contract offered them by the Braves. On that day President Gaffney will return to this city to close with the two "holdouts" of the world's champions.

Mann is balking at the terms offered him by the club and threatens to "jump" to the Federal League unless he is given what he asks for. The chief executive of the Braves says he will not stand in Mann's way if he wants to go to the "Feds."

"All right, go ahead," Gaffney is said to have replied to Mann's telephoned threat to jump. "You can think it over and do what you think best. If you want to join the Feds well and good. And if is the same if you sign with the Braves."

"Will you give me my unconditional release?" Mann asked.

"Certainly and emphatically not," replied Gaffney.

Nothing has been heard from Deal since he was given the club's terms.

"The Rabbit's" Column By Walter J. Maranville SHORTSTOP OF THE BRAVES

Jack Coombs, former mainstay of Connie Mack's pitching staff, refuses to believe that he is all in as a pitcher. He has signed to play with the Brooklyn Nationals next season and is now spending the Winter getting in condition for the baseball campaign of 1915.

He declares he will report in shipshape. If he gets back to where he was three or four years ago he will give some of the fellows in the National League a run for the money when he goes in the box.

* * *

Coombs came from Colby College and joined the Athletics in 1906. He gained fame right off the reel by pitching the longest major league game on record. It was a 24-inning contest, played on the old Huntington avenue grounds in Boston and Coombs beat the Red Sox 4 to 1. Joe Harris was the opposing pitcher.

In 1910 he won 31 out of 40 games and created a new shutout record in the American League by pitching thirteen scoreless games. He also pitched 53 consecutive scoreless innings, a record which Walter Johnson beat in 1913 when he pitched 56 innings without a run being chalked up against him. To complete a fine season Jack won three games against the Cubs in the 1910 World's Series.

* * *

Coombs continued a marvel at the twirlers' art until the 1911 World's Series, when he suffered a severe injury. He had beaten the Giants early in the series and had the fifth game almost won, the score being 5 to 0 and the Giants had made only two hits up to the seventh inning, when something snapped in Jack's anatomy. He continued, however, and the score was tied on him in the ninth, and the Giants won off Plank in the tenth.

* * *

Here is Jack's record in the American League:

Season	Won	Lost	Pct.
1906	10	11	.476
1907	6	9	.400
1908	7	5	.583
1909	12	11	.522
1910	21	9	.775
1911	28	12	.700
1912	21	10	.677
1913	5	0	1.000
1914	0	1	.000

Johnny Evers is playing shortstop for the Elks' indoor baseball team at Troy. In a game with the Laureates the other night Johnny fielded in fine form, but the fans had to laugh when he struck out.

* * *

Baseball men on both sides of the suit brought by the Federal League against Organized Ball seem glad that the case is in the hands of Judge Landis, who probably is more conversant with baseball law and its relation to Federal statutes than any other jurist in America. Courts are formed primarily to interpret the law, but they are also supposed to be the places where justice is meted out.

* * *

It is noteworthy that Judge Landis put the Federal League attorneys on record in court as to the things they wanted him to do in granting the injunction. The court well new how sweeping their demands were, and no doubt has been weighing in his mind the effect the granting of a temporary injunction would have on the game as a national institution. Would it paralyze a big baseball business and throw thousands of ball players out of employment, as the attorneys for the defence contended?

* * *

Nearly everyone concedes that a contract with a reserve clause and a ten-day release provision is it is non-enforceable in court of equity, yet every well informed baseball man holds the opinion that those clauses are necessary for the success of the game, especially so the option clause.

* * *

I don't see how you can say that the reporter's account of the Paul Hines triple play is confusing, and from the account I should think that Hines did make the triple play.

The account says that he caught the ball and then touched third, retiring both Burns and Manning. Burdock by catching the ball and touching third retired Burns. It does not say that Sutton had already turned third base, and I hardly see how he could have gotten that far, as he must have only been one foot on it when Burdock touched it. The account would indicate that Sutton was touched between second and third, and that Hines himself retired Manning after having completed a brilliant triple play unassisted.

What do you?

A PRESENT-DAY FAN.

Cambridge.

You fail to mention that the report says "Manning and Sutton speeded to the home plate." It doesn't say they speeded "for" the home plate, but "to" it. Therefore, when Hines caught the ball and touched third he retired Manning and Sutton and (of course) Burdock, completing the triple play unassisted.

Clark Leads Field in Paleface Shoot

Walter Clark was the star at the weekly trap shooting of the Paleface Gun Club at Wellington. He topped the field in the 100 target event with a break of 92.

Tom Varick of Manchester, N. H., finished with a score of 92, the best reached in the handicap event, 8 of which was allowed him in targets. His actual net break registered 84. Varick was second best on the Paleface team which won the five-men-aside team match with the Everett Gun Club in a 100 target match. The Paleface five won out by a score of 405 to 385.

The returning southern shooters were Mayer Reed of Manchester, Clark, Varick, S. W. Putnam and J. Snow.

STARS IN MAYOR TROPHY RACE

The best middle-distance runners of the East will compete in the Mayor Curley 1,000-yard trophy race, which will be the feature of the Irish-American A. A. games, to be held in Mechanics Building, Saturday night. The Mayor probably will witness the event.

The trophy is a bronze statue upon a wide base representing Victory and stands two feet high. It must be won three times by a competitor before it becomes his permanent property.

Many Holy Cross College athletic followers look to see Joe Higgins win the trophy. They are taking into consideration Higgins' great race against Tom Halpin in the special 600-yard Colonel Pfaff trophy run at the Coast games. Halpin won only by inches from the Holy Cross runner, and was compelled to break the 600-yard record in so doing.

Coach Pooch Donovan is grooming Captain Frank Capper and Bill Bingham of Harvard for this race, and expects to see either of these Crimson men the first to break the tape. Mel Sheppard of New York is also strongly fancied, and judging by his time trials in practice at the New York Armory, the former Olympic star has come back into the form that made him a world record breaker. If Jimmy Power of the B. A. A. enters he is sure to make the winner know he has been in a race.

In mixed doubles, playing with Miss Barbara Farrington of West Newton, Wright defeated Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Ellsworth by 6—1, 6—3, and today plays Miss Eleanor Cohen and Mr. Jones.

JULIA HEINRICH IS HEARD IN RECITAL

By FREDERICK JOHNS.

Julia Heinrich, daughter of Max Heinrich, the baritone, made her local debut in concert at Jordan Hall yesterday afternoon before a large and friendly audience. Her father was accompanist, and she sang a group of songs of his composition during the course of the afternoon.

Miss Heinrich is a large and attractive young woman with a big, warm, dramatic soprano which, however, seemed limited in range, and which she taxed severely in several of her songs. Her high notes were frequently shrill and labored, and she found such ponderous airs as Schubert's "Omnipotent" distressing. She was best in songs which displayed her very rich and agreeable middle voice. One of Mr. Heinrich's airs from "Autumn Eve," was so charming and so prettily sung that she was obliged to give an encore in the middle of a group. Miss Heinrich gave a complete recital of twenty-two numbers, and she really isn't up to such a task at present.

MARIE TEMPEST SCORES HEAVILY

Marie Tempest will repeat at the Majestic Theatre this evening the comedy, "The Marriage of Kitty," with which she roused gleeful applause the evening before.

Preceding the major part of the bill will be the new one-act play, "The Dumb and the Blind," which proved an agreeable curtain raiser last night.

Miss Tempest's vivacious charm as Kitty carries her audience through smiles and laughter. Her transformation in the first act, wherein she makes herself into a dowdy person and refuses to be sent as a stranger to her lawful, wedded husband.

An admirable company assists Miss Tempest. W. Graham Browne as Kitty's husband, is torn to tatters with distracting emotions. Herbert Ross is a resourceful valet, and Kate Serjeantson, as the would-be wife of Kitty's husband, plays up to the comedy atmosphere with vigor and zest. Miss Lillian Cavanagh shows a French maid's understanding of the domestic situation that is quite artistic.

Mr. Newall, as the clerk, and Mr. Alexander as the man-servant get all there is out of these roles.

The curtain raiser, "The Dumb and the Blind," enables Mr. Brune, Miss Nellie Moore, Miss Cavanagh and Mr. Alexander to do character acting of high degree. The playlet shows the struggle of the London cockney type with the finer emotions, emotions to which their narrow horizon makes them dumb and blind, but which they grasp at hopefully. The playlet works slowly but surely up to a climax that brings warm applause.

Tomorrow and Saturday evenings and Saturday matinee, Miss Tempest and her company repeat the Henry Arthur Jones comedy, "Mary Goes First," which opened their week's engagement her so auspiciously.

PUT STOMACH IN FINE CONDITION

Says Indigestion Results from an Excess of Hydrochloric Acid.

Undigested food delayed in the stomach decays, or, rather, ferments the same as food left in the open air, says a noted authority. He also tells us that Indigestion is caused by Hyper-acidity, meaning, there is an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach which prevents complete digestion and starts food fermentation. Thus everything eaten sours in the stomach, much like garbage sours in a can; forming acrid fluids and gases which inflate the stomach like a toy balloon. Then we feel a heavy, lumpy misery in the chest, belch up gas, we eructate sour food or have heartburn, flatulence, waterbrash or nausea.

He tells us to lay aside all digestive aids and instead, get from any pharmacy four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and drink while it is effervescing. This harmless, is used by thousands of people for stomach trouble with excellent results.—Advertisement.

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Ladies! Try this! Darkens beautifully and nobody can tell—Brings back its gloss and thickness.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant; remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic, costing about 50 cents a large bottle, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes restored fully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger.—Advertisement.

MISS MINNA ESTEY, SHOW GIRL WHO WILL MARRY A BROKER

SURPRISES SUITOR WITH HER FIANCE

Miss Minna Estey, a show girl in Emma Trentini's operetta, "The Peasant Girl," surprised a clerk in Tremont street jewelry store, who is her ardent admirer, by returning yesterday from New York and introducing to him not a broker of that city—said by the lady to be George Colby—as her fiance.

Miss Estey has lived in Boston for two years and is said to have suggested to the clerk that a solitaire diamond ring would be a suitable evidence of his devotion, if he wished to monopolize her interest. When he took her request as a token, she went to New York and plighted troth with the broker.

Returning to Boston with her heart's elect, she led him to the show case behind which the clerk was awaiting customers, and remarked to her escort:

"George, dear, ask this sales person to show us some solitaires—not more than five carat stones. Large diamonds are so vulgar, don't you think?"

'THE SON-IN-LAW' AT TOY THEATRE

By FREDERICK JOHNS.

The French company at the Toy Theatre presented last night a four-act comedy by Angel and Sandeau, entitled "The Son-in-Law of Monsieur Poirier." This is the second of their local offerings, for they began a fortnight's season Monday night with Brieux's celebrated play "Blanchette."

This company is headed by Claude Benedict, and comes from the Theatre Francais in New York, which has no connection with the Theatre Francais in Paris, despite the similarity of names.

"The Son-in-Law of Monsieur Poirier" is an old-fashioned comedy of manners. It deals with Gabriel, a merchant prince who is ambitious to break into the peerage; Poirier, and a peerage in the days when the play was written. He marries his daughter to a useless Marquis who won't work and accumulates debts for papa-in-law to pay. The four-acts deal with an incident in the reconstruction of this household, when son-in-law is caught flirting with another woman, and is about to fight a duel. He withdraws from the duel and is forgiven by his wife and the family resumes its routine.

It is not a particularly brilliant example of French comedy and it is rather a pity that such a play should be selected in so brief a season of French drama.

Mr. Benedict's company did not strike me as remarkable last night. I do not know how the actors would look in another sort of play, but in "The Gendre de Monsieur Poirier" they appeared like a very provincial troupe. Benedict himself is a fine character actor. His Monsieur Poirier is an amusing old Bourgeois, good hearted, ambitious, lacking in breeding and restraint. He was the only member of the company who could be said to have distinguished himself. R. Faure, as the son-in-law didn't suggest the dashing, fashionable, but impecunious marquis to any extent. Renevant as Verdelet was supposed to be a rustic, but might just as well have been a valet. Mme. Jeurville as the noble hearted wife, undistinguished. Louys as the elderly friend of Poirier was acceptable. Nobody else deserves special mention.

Let us hope the company will have better luck with "Le Voyage de Monsieur Perrichon," which will be given Friday night.

LOAN LAW BROKEN OFTEN, SAYS NEAL

Interest in the loan shark probe at the State House shifted today from the attacks of former Supervisor E. Gerry Brown on Governor Walsh, and centered him from office early in the month, to the sensational report of Deputy Chief Neal of the state Police on the result of his investigation of Brown's conduct of his former office.

The concensus of legislative opinion appears to be that Deputy Neal's report to the Governor takes the ground from under the Supervisor he removed from office and more than justifies that removal.

Deputy Neal dishonored, he reports, "willful and continuous violations of the law on the part of licensed money lenders by charging monthly—instead of once in three months—an expense fee of ten per cent. of the principal for 'making the loans.'"

Three Boston money lenders, Deputy Chief Neal says, told him under oath that Brown told them he would "never molest them" until a complaint was lodged against them in his office, in which case they must refund whatever charges they had taken contrary to his "regulations." Every one of eight licenses examined by Deputy Neal, he says, admitted making "overcharges" and testified to the "understanding" with Brown that in case of a complaint the money must be returned.

Deputy Neal calls attention to a provision of the law that money lenders who violate any rule or order of the Supervisor shall be subject to a fine of not more than $200. He says he could find no record of prosecution or revocation since August, 1912.

The second in command of the State police, who has served under all the Governors for twenty years, and who is not a member of Governor Walsh's party, concludes his sensational report with these words:

"A very large sum of money has been unfairly taken from the borrowers of small loans by many of the licensed loan agencies in every part of the state for two and a half years, and THEY SHOULD BE MADE TO REFUND IT. AS MOST OF IT COMES FROM POOR PEOPLE WHO CAN ILL AFFORD TO LOSE IT."

One of the money lenders, asked by Deputy Neal what he would do if he were required to refund to all the victims of his overcharges, said he would "file a petition in bankruptcy," because it would run him to such "big money."

Walsh May Submit Knowlton B. & M. Bill

Governor Walsh has intimated that he might send to the Legislature another message accompanying the bill for reorganization of the Boston & Maine.

All State and City Work Which Can Be Done NOW Should Be Done NOW

Governor Walsh is moving in several directions to the aid of our fellow citizens who are out of work and needy through no fault of their own. The recommendation he made in his inaugural address to utilize immediately funds already appropriated to reclaim our wet lands and to add to these funds another fifty thousand dollars is already being favorably advanced in the Legislature.

The virtue of this proposal is that it will not only help our people who are out of employment, but it will give to the State land capable of great fertility which is now useless because under water. The more fertile land we bring under cultivation the more we tend to reduce the cost of living in this community.

But the Governor has also another project in mind to this same end. He hopes to provide more work for the needy and at the same time to promote the work of saving our forests. Nature has been so prodigal of natural resources in America that we are only recently beginning to appreciate the necessity of cultivating trees as we would corn, or wheat, or peas.

Few of us know that in Germany and in some other parts of Europe, even where the population is the thickest, some cities derive their greatest income from the cultivation of their trees. We are now resisting the destructive inroads upon our forest by insects like the gypsy moth. The State Forester says that this work can be started immediately and that unskilled men, under proper supervision, can do it well.

Here then is an opportunity to employ our idle people in work beneficial to the whole Commonwealth. Every city or town has its quota of unemployed whose labor could be utilized in the work of saving our trees. Moreover, it has been suggested, and State Forester Rane believes that it is feasible, to make agreements in many cases with those who own forest lands to chop the wood which they could market in return for a reasonable compensation that would tend to reduce the cost to the State of the gypsy moth work.

Mr. Coulthurst of the Boston City Council also proposes that a large part of the eighty thousand dollars which is now in the city treasury above the needs of the departments be appropriated to construction work which the city must do any way and which Mr. Coulthurst thinks under these present, distressing, critical circumstances ought to be done immediately. If this plan is feasible, Mayor Curley ought not to stand in its way in order to make a good financial showing of cash on hand. Mr. Coulthurst is not in the habit of playing to the galleries or suggesting ill-considered measures.

The AMERICAN hopes that Mr. Curley will put aside any personal considerations and support this bill if its ONLY demerit is that it may give him a less favorable BOOKKEEPING record.

The AMERICAN likes to repeat the words of Bismarck, the greatest statesman of the nineteenth century, that "it is the duty of the German State to provide every honest man who is willing to work adequate employment." It is the recognition of that duty which has helped to give Germany her wonderful progress.

The Hampden Railroad Cannot Be Foisted on the Boston & Maine

The text of the bill for the reorganization of the Boston & Maine Railroad was made public Tuesday night. Today is set for the legislative hearing upon this vital proposition. Only twenty-four hours have thus been given to examine a bill which it has probably taken months to prepare. An act of this character, with its numerous cross references to parts of the general law, cannot be understood merely by reading the text of the bill itself, even if the one who reads is a profound student of railroad law and economics. Therefore, twenty-four hours is not long enough even for the best informed men to determine all the questions raised by this bill.

It is impossible to believe that anyone seriously intends to precipitate the public consideration of such a critical proposal and probably the trustees of the Boston & Maine, who are responsible for the bill, are the last who would wish any improper precipitancy.

A cursory examination of the text without reading it in relation to the general laws, reveals some matters which clearly need further elucidation.

The presumption is in favor of the general proposition. The trustees are men of character, who realize that their work is clothed with the public interest. The great disaster which has overtaken our railroad property in New England and indeed throughout the country from the overreaching schemes of private manipulators makes it impossible that anyone should attempt to handle this poor railroad again roughly for some time to come. If anyone had the temerity to undertake such treatment, the AMERICAN believes that the trustees, headed by former Chief Justice Knowlton, would not countenance it if they knew it.

But these gentlemen are not railroad men and it is possible that there are provisions in the bill the consequences of which they have not considered and which they would be glad to have pointed out to them.

One thing is certain and it might as well be understood by everyone at the outset, that the Hampden Railroad cannot, under cover of this bill, be foisted upon the Boston & Maine. The provisions of Section 7 relating to the Hampden Railroad, on the first reading, do not appear proper. This road the Boston & Maine does not need and would not need if it were a prosperous corporation. In the present condition of the Boston & Maine it would be a crime to take it at anything more than its actual value to the Boston & Maine and the difference between its actual value to this railroad and the price at which certain gentlemen on State street want to palm it off on the unfortunate Boston & Maine, is scandalous.

Great Mysteries of Nature and Science

How Rays of Sun Traversing Millions of Miles in Form of Invisible Waves Are Turned Into "Heat" and "Light" on Striking Earth

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

"CAN you give me any information as to the distance from the earth that light and heat cease, and in the absence of all heat what is the temperature?—D. E. R."

In the absence of all heat the temperature is zero, not the zero of the thermometers, but what is called "absolute zero." In other words, where there is no heat there is no temperature. Absolute zero is supposed to be about 274 degrees below the thermometric zero of the Centigrade scale and about 461 degrees below the thermometric zero of the Fahrenheit scale.

Absolute zero might, imaginatively, be defined as molecular death, because a substance which has lost all temperature has necessarily lost all molecular, or internal, energy, and has become entirely inert.

Both light and heat are effects produced by motion of the molecules and atoms of which all matter consists. A molecule is "the smallest quantity of a compound substance which can exhibit the properties by which that substance is identified." An atom is one of the constituent parts of a molecule and may be defined as "the smallest quantity of simple matter which can enter into the composition of the molecule." Thus a molecule of water consists of two atoms of hydrogen and one atom of oxygen. We need not here consider the recent discovery that atoms themselves are divisible into yet smaller particles.

Except when in the state of absolute zero, the molecules of all substances are in continual motion among themselves. We can see neither the molecules nor their motion, but we can feel the molecular motion, or vibration, in the sensation that we call heat. To satisfy yourself that "heat" is an internal motion among the particles, or molecules, of a body, take a hammer and pound upon a piece of iron. After a time both the hammer and the iron will become warm. They do so because their molecules have been set into greater vibration than before.

There are many sources of heat on the earth, but all of them are insignificant in comparison with the sun, which supplies nearly all the heat and light that the earth, as a whole, enjoys. This supply is furnished by vibrations, originating in the motions of the atoms and molecules composing the sun, and transmitted through the "ether" across space to the earth. The ether is a theoretical medium of which we have no knowledge except by its effects that is believed to extend through all space, and to penetrate freely through all forms of matter.

The vibrations that the ether receives from the sun and passes on to earth and the other planets are called radiant energy, and two of the most familiar forms in which this energy is manifested we know as light and heat.

Now, you ask: "At what distance from the earth do light and heat cease?"

Evidently, from what has been said above, distance from the earth has nothing to do with the cessation or with the existence of the rays of energy from the sun. They will continue to pass farther and farther away into space, on all sides, their intensity within a given area varying inversely as the square of the distance, until they have become so widely dispersed as to be insensible. If they hit the earth, that is the earth's good luck.

Yet these rays are neither light nor heat, in our sense of those words, as long as they are simply borne onward through the ether. It is only when they strike some material substance, like the earth, that they give rise to molecular vibrations producing the sensation of light in the eye, and of heat in the organs of touch or feeling. The form that the radiations take is that of minute waves in the ether, and there is an immense variety in the length and the rapidity of vibrations of these waves. Those whose length falls between about one 40,000th and one 60,000th of an inch produce the sensation of light in the eye. Those that are shorter or longer than these produce no effect upon the nerve of vision, but we are beginning to find out that some of them have other effects, for the recognition of which we seem to possess no special senses. Some of these invisible waves produce heat on striking the earth, but most of the heat-producing waves appear to be at the same time producers of light.

The ether itself is not rendered luminous, and is not heated, by the passage of the sun's rays. Consequently if you could place yourself out in open space, beyond our atmosphere, you would find no diffused light around you. You would see no luminous rays. You would see the sun and the stars, but the former would appear as a brilliant round disk set in a perfectly black sky, and the stars would be points of piercing brightness, with no flicker or halo of light about them. The sun's rays falling upon your head might produce a sensation of heat, for its molecules would be set into vibration; yet the intense cold about you, and the absence of any absorbing medium to retain the heat, might, at the same time, result in your being frozen solid to the centre with the suddenness of an explosion.

THE WINDOW

By LILIAN LAUFERTY

MY window looks out on the cold brick walls,
Where shadow and shade of sunlight falls;
But never a glimpse of the sky I see,
Never a flower or leafy tree,
Never a crumpled cloud for me—
Only a window and sombre walls,
Where shadow of brick and iron falls.

Lifeless around me on every hand
Windows gleam like a mystic band,
But never a face in the frame I see,
Never the cheer of a baby's glee,
Never a friendly smile for me—
Only a window and sombre wall,
Prisoned like me 'neath the city's pall.

Ella Wheeler Wilcox —ON— What Is a Good Woman?

Highest Type Is She Who Attends to Nearest Duty First, Relieves Distress, Bestows Sympathy and Fears Not Traditions

Copyright, 1915, by the Star Company.

THERE are good women; there are better women; there are best women.

There are comparatively good women, positively good women and superlatively good women; and all these definitions are modified by time, place, climate and temperament.

Good women appear in public places and before men here in America with uncovered faces and shoulders; but in Turkey no good woman could do this, because it is not the custom, and would offend.

The good woman does not offend purposely or wantonly. She submits to the inconveniences and discomforts of tradition until she can see some reasonable prospect of bettering the race by defying the conventions.

The comparatively good woman lives a harmless life, avoids wounding anyone, and submits to all manner of injustice at the hands of society because she dislikes to make a fuss or attract attention or disturb existing orders.

The positively good woman lives an actively good life, under the same conditions, putting herself to great trouble to help others and trying to overcome the results of injustice without essaying to remove the cause.

Superlatively Good Woman Is One Who Attends to Nearest Duty First

The superlatively good woman does all this and more. She attends to the nearest duty first—relieves distress and bestows sympathy; but she is brave enough to attempt an attack on established traditions when they stand in the way of the progress of the human race, even though the attacks bring suffering and pain upon herself. Mary Livermore, Julia Ward Howe, Victoria Woodhull, Lucretia Mott, Susan B. Anthony, Elizabeth Cady Stanton, were all superlatively good women. Refined, sensitive and beautiful souls, they suffered from the brutality and ignorance of the world when they gave their lives to the destruction of moss-grown breeders of pestilence, and undertook the construction of the great, broad edifice where woman dwells today.

The merely good woman does no evil. She keeps the commandments, and is happy in being harmless.

The better woman does no evil and strives also to do good where it comes to her way.

The best woman does no evil, does much good and goes out of her way to inspire and encourage those who have been doing wrong to new aspirations and endeavors.

The good woman never speaks ill of the absent. She is silent when others condemn.

The better woman speaks well of the absent when it is possible to do so.

Good Woman May Be Simple and Humble, but Does Her Duty.

The best woman defends the absent, even at the risk of offending those persons who are prone to condemn.

The good woman is satisfied with being good.

The best woman is continually at work upon her character to make it better.

The really good woman is a good daughter, sister, wife, mother and friend. She may be simple, humble, uneducated and poor, yet if she fulfils her duty in all these relations she is the best of women, for they invariably call forth the highest qualities of human nature, and often demand self-denial, self-sacrifice and self-control.

There are chaste scandalmongers who are neighborhood assassins—slaying characters with their adder tongues.

There are models of virtue who are reckless spendthrifts, wasting hard-earned money in needless ways.

The good woman knows how to curb her temper, how to be charitable in speech, how to economize her expenditures.

It requires courage, self-control and unselfishness for a woman to practice common sense economy when surrounded by extravagance and folly. In the heart of fashionable society some such good women may be found.

It requires the same virtues and faith and trust in God's wisdom added for a woman to be cheerful, kind and patient while her heart is starved all her life for the refinements and pleasures of existence; yet many such women are to be found in homes of poverty—good women, who rejoice in the success and happiness of others while fated to live a life of hard work and loneliness from the cradle to the grave. In shops, factories and kitchens, there are good women doing distasteful work patiently, and cheerfully using their earnings for others dependent upon them.

There are good women who stand by bad husbands, because they believe it their duty and because they hope for ultimate reformation.

There are good women who leave bad husbands because they realize that self-respect, or the salvation of their children, demands it.

Simply Matter of Living Up to Highest Understanding of Duty

Any woman who lives up to her highest understanding of duty is a good woman, no matter how others may differ in their ideas of what constitutes duty.

The girl who gives up her ambition for an education in order to remain at home and care for aging parents is a good girl, but another may prove a better girl who pushes ahead and secures her education in order that she can give her parents a more desirable home eventually.

The highest unselfishness must sometimes suffer from the misconstruction of the world, which regards it as selfishness.

We are all a little better or a little worse than we were last year this time; a little stronger or a little weaker; a little wiser or a little duller.

There is no such thing as remaining stationary. The world turns on its axis—the sun, stars, planets, all revolve. Even the rocks are composed of millions of ever-moving atoms. So the mind of the moral is always doing its work and making or unmaking the character.

It is for you to decide as you analyze your own life whether you are a good woman or not; whether you are as good as you know how to be, and whether you are better this year than you were last.
